PRICE THREE CENTS

FIND BODY OF YOUTH, 10, IN LOCAL QUARRY

George A. Champlain Is First Victim of Drowning on Saturday Last.

HOLD FUNERAL 2 P. M. TUESDAY

After lying in the cold, muddy waters of the Auburn shale brick yard quarry, west of here, for almost two hours, the body of George Allen Champlain, 10-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Luther L. Champlain, Murphy apartments, Baltimore street, was recovered shortly before 4 o'clock, Saturday afternoon.

William Brown, a member of the junior class at Gettysburg college, found the body in about six feet of water, twenty feet from shore.

After the body was brought to shore, the inhalator of the Gettysburg fire department was used, but to no avail. Later the body was taken to the Warner hospital by "Whitey" Worthington, Carlisle street, accompanied by Horace L. Bender, Baltimore street, who used artificial respiration, but when physicians examined the boy at the hospital life was extinct.

Raft Capsizes
The Champlain boy, in company with Joseph Reaver and Charles Reaver, Jr., brothers, Railroad street, went to the brick yard quarry, Saturday afternoon, to fish.

Shortly after they arrived there, the boys launched a small raft. They were about 20 feet from shore when the raft suddenly capsized, and all three boys were precipitated into the water. None of the boys was able to swim, but the Reaver children succeeded in paddling to shallow water.

No other persons were in the immediate vicinity when the raft capsized, although a number of boys were at the quarry some distance away. Included in this group were James Harness, Joseph Becker, Philip Long, Jack Olinger, Eugene Groff, George Olinger, "Pete" Woodward, Adam Myers, Richard Rosensteel and Lawrence Cullison.

Students Aid In Search
Some time after the tragedy, the Reaver boys walked around the quarry and joined the other group of boys, all of whom were older. When the Reaver boys were asked where the third boy who had been with them was, they said he had drowned.

About 20 minutes later, four college students, William Compton, Wallace Calvert, Charles Althouse and Anthony Savarese, arrived at the quarry to swim, and were told about the Champlain boy drowning. The college students dived into the quarry, but were unsuccessful in their efforts to find the body.

Later, two grappling irons from the Gettysburg fire company were provided, and afterward a small row boat was brought to the pond and dragging of the bottom began.

It remained, however, for Brown to find the body, and bring it to land. Raymond Quick, another college student, helped Brown.

Dr. Edgar A. Miller, Adams county coroner, signed the death certificate as accidental drowning.

The young drowning victim, the first in Adams county this year, was a pupil in the second grade at the High street public school.

Surviving are the parents, Luther L. and Mrs. Bessie V. (Arentz) Champlain, one sister, Esther Louise Champlain, at home; and the grandparents, Mrs. Estella Champlain, Gettysburg, and Mr. and Mrs. Allen Arentz, Two Taverns.

Funeral services Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Bender funeral home, the Rev. Edwin L. Eslinger, pastor of the Gettysburg Methodist Episcopal church, officiating. Interment in the Evergreen cemetery.

Friends may call at the funeral home between 7 and 9 o'clock this evening.

TWO COUNTIANS HURT IN CRASH

Machine Upsets and Bursts Into Flames Early This Morning.

Morris Bechtel, 36, of Littlestown R. 1, and Emory Yohe, of Hanover R. 3, near Littlestown, were injured early this morning when the automobile in which they were riding overturned and burst into flames on the Spring Grove-Hanover highway, near the Blair Meeting house, about three miles from Hanover.

Both are patients at the Hanover hospital. Bechtel suffering from a fractured right arm, lacerations of the right arm and undetermined injuries to the right side of his chest, and Yohe suffering from brush burns and shock.

Yohe was pulled from beneath the auto by William Bange, Hanover, who later told reporters that it was necessary for him to use forceful methods to drag Yohe from his dangerous position. Bechtel evidently had been thrown from the vehicle in the accident. He was found lying on the highway.

The machine involved in the accident was a touring car, owned by Bechtel, who operates an automobile graveyard at Kingsdale. The same car, when found abandoned on the streets of Hanover one morning last week with a number of bullet holes in the rear, created much excitement until Bechtel appeared later and explained that he had abandoned the car the evening before when the distributor was drowned out by a heavy rain. The bullet holes, he said, had been caused some time before by boys shooting target when the car was stored in the yard at his garage.

Adams County Is Sea of Color as Apple Blossoms Reign over Wide Section

Adams county's apple blossoms are out in all their glory and by Wednesday the entire fruit belt of this first county in Pennsylvania will be a riot of color the like of which cannot be equalled in any section of the United States.

The colorful apple belt is ablaze with pink and white blossoms today, "pushed" out by the intense warm weather that prevailed over the week-end. Motorists who drove through the upper community districts on Sunday were amazed at the grandeur and beauty of the apple-growing land of Adams county.

Most of the trees are in full bloom now but by Wednesday the entire area, unless some unforeseen development occurs, will be swathed in the most colorful picture to be found anywhere.

Adams county's apple blossoms are second to none and this area is the largest concentrated apple blossom section in the world.

More than 600,000 trees will be in full bloom and they stretch in almost one continuous panorama of color from York Springs through Orrtanna.

"Most extensive and concentrated in the world; more picturesque and colorful than the most imaginative artist can portray," is the way one motorist described the apple blossoms of Adams county.

The Gettysburg Chamber of Commerce is furnishing directional signs to be placed throughout the county directing motorists to the highways that traverse the blossoms' belt.

Fruit growers who desire additional directional cards are requested to call at the motor club office in Gettysburg where an extra supply is available for those sections not thoroughly covered.

Tell Outside Folk
Fruit growers report that apple blossom time in Adams county is rapidly developing into an annual homecoming for many Adams county families. Folk in the city who have gone out from Adams county but "in whose minds linger memories of happy apple blossom seasons in their early youth come back home during this period to live again through the years of their early lives."

Residents of Gettysburg and the county are urged to write their relatives and friends in the cities and elsewhere telling them that the apple blossoms this year have come out in all their glory and urge them to come and view them and "enjoy a real treat in the open." It is also suggested that those who come be shown "the added beautiful attraction of the Judas trees and dogwood in full bloom on the Gettysburg battlefields."

More than 2,000 Knights, attired in plumed hats, long black coats, emblazoned with the cross, the symbol of their order and girded with swords, stood before the rostrum in the cemetery and heard the Rev. Dr. Milton H. Nichols, grand prelate of the Pennsylvania commandery, and pastor of the Arch street Memorial Methodist Episcopal church, Philadelphia, enunciate the principles of Templarism and their application to modern life.

"You are soldiers of peace," Rev. Dr. Nichols said, "whose sword hilt is the cross and whose banner bears the inscription 'By this sign conquer.' You are enlisted in a warfare of right against wrong, of loyalty against treason, of brotherhood against class hatred, religious intolerance and bigotry.

Peace and Happiness
"Your weapons are not carnal, but spiritual; you are not military, but militant and you stand for those principles pronounced by Jesus Christ for true and upright living. Your high purpose is to bring peace, happiness and comfort to mankind."

The Rev. L. B. Hafer, commander of Gettysburg commandery, 79, presided at the exercises in the cemetery which followed a parade from the Masonic home here. After the singing of "America," Rev. Lord's Prayer
This was followed by the Lord's prayer, with the Knights uncovered and their swords at order position.

The exercises closed with the singing of the Templars' hymn, "Onward Christian Soldiers," the benediction, pronounced by the Rev. Dr. Nichols and the singing of the "Star-Spangled Banner."

Besides the throng of Knights Templar from various sections of Pennsylvania, large delegations were present from Maryland, Virginia, the District of Columbia, New Jersey and New York commanderies.

INSULL HOME FOR BIG FIGHT

Fallen Utilities Czar Says Its "Most Important Fight Of My Life."

Princeton, N. J., May 7 (AP).—After two years of exile, Samuel Insull, fallen utilities czar, was brought back to America today "to make the most important fight of my life."

He will seek not only freedom, the aged prisoner said, but complete vindication. "I made mistakes—but they were honest mistakes," he stated. "They were errors in judgment, but not dishonest manipulation."

Those "errors in judgment" referred to his activities as head of a far-flung utilities empire, the collapse of which resulted in charges of embezzlement, larceny, use of the mails to defraud and violation of the bankruptcy act against him.

Swiftly and carefully, government officials executed Insull's transfer from the S. S. Exilona to a Chicago bound train.

A coast guard cutter met the steamship at sea, and Insull was bundled aboard and taken to Fort Hancock, N. J. There a motor car awaited and speeded him to Princeton Junction, where he was placed on a Pennsylvania train, due in Chicago tomorrow morning.

New Hope in Bandit Hunt

Chicago, May 7 (AP).—The silent intensity of the hunt for John Dillinger, public enemy No. 1, swung into high Sunday with the arrival of Joseph B. Keenan, assistant attorney-general.

Keenan immediately went into conferences with local federal directors of the far-flung search for the notorious outlaw. They reviewed the progress of the small army of federal agents to date and drew up a new campaign map to get Dillinger dead or alive.

With the tenth week of the man hunt starting Sunday, a lull in reports of Dillinger's "sighting," which began several days ago, continued. For twenty-four hours officers trailing the fugitive and his henchmen had received no information as to his possible whereabouts.

Hideouts Raided

In Chicago, Police Sergeant Frank Reynolds and his squad of forty men assigned to "get Dillinger," made several swoops into suspected hideouts of the Indiana mob. No trace of Dillinger was found.

But it was known that at least 250 ex-convicts were under close scrutiny in the belief that some of them may know of Dillinger's whereabouts and his movements. Telephone wires, also, were being tapped in the minute search for clues.

It was two weeks ago Sunday night that Dillinger and his gang shot their way through federal officers in a Wisconsin north woods hideout in a battle that caused two deaths and wounds for four.

Forces Cooperating

The arrival of Keenan was a signal for reports that the federal trackers were drawing closer the bonds of cooperation with local authorities throughout the mid-west area in which Dillinger's men have stalked.

At the local office of the bureau of investigation the usual science of the hunt. But it was understood that all the Dillinger foemen were convinced that a united front offered the best strategy against the elusive Indian and his cohorts.

Keenan came into prominence several months ago with his aid in successful prosecution of kidnappers tracked down by federal operatives, and his arrival was taken here to indicate that the government was prepared for a supreme effort to end Dillinger's marauding freedom.

BIBLE TODAY IS NEGLECTED SAYS PASTOR

Rev. Paul L. Reaser Cites Reasons for Lack of Bible Reading.

Five eternal qualities found in the Bible were presented by the Rev. Paul L. Reaser, supply pastor of the St. James Lutheran church, in his sermon Sunday morning.

The title of the sermon was "The Living Word in a Forgotten Book," the text of which was taken from Hebrews 4:12, "For the word of God is living, and active, and sharper than any two-edged sword."

Four reasons for the neglect in reading the Bible today were outlined by the Rev. Mr. Reaser. "One reason may be mental laziness. Much of it is hard to understand, and we turn aside for something more thrilling, popular and vivid. A second reason is the growing independence in children who today have turned away from reading the Bible. In the third place there are those who believe the Bible is true, but who wait for others to explain it to them and fourthly, because most of us think that it has no particular value in our day, that there is an incompatibility between the Book and the life we are now living."

Continuing the Rev. Mr. Reaser said, "We are involved in and bound up by attitudes which are hurting us fearfully in our day. We are letting the world tell us that the Word is not important. "The Bible has been the inspiration of the leaders of the world. It is our greatest record of men and women meeting difficulties and overcoming them. It is a comfort to those who mourn. The Bible is the earliest record of the life of Jesus and finally, it shows the way to salvation, from sin, from pride, from indifference, from insensitiveness to evil."

In conclusion the Rev. Mr. Reaser said: "The sooner we rediscover our Book of Books and read it, the better it will be for us and our children and our children's children. Let us not delay. Start reading it and pondering it today. In a few minutes of early morning, or in the evening, lay up its gems in the storehouse of your minds. And in the day of leisure, and in the hour of trial you shall have power unconquerable, a wealth which the world cannot give nor take away, a word that lives and gives life to all who know and believe."

Harrisburg, May 7.—Several hours after someone attempted to rob the home of Charles Brown, of Adler alley, Andrew Lytle, 29, of Cowden street, was arrested by police on a charge of burglary.

A thief removed a screen from the Brown house and entered through a first floor window. He sneaked upstairs and was trying to slip Brown's pocketbook from his trousers when Mrs. Brown awoke. She screamed and awakened Brown, but too late to catch the burglar, who had fled.

Police were given a description of the man and Lytle was arrested later.

Forest Blaze In Two Counties

Two forest fires that raged in Northern Dauphin and in Lebanon counties were reported under control by state forestry officials Sunday night.

A fire, which broke out on Round Top, Jefferson township, north of Carlisle, Saturday morning apparently was extinguished, but broke out anew Saturday. It was reported under control again Sunday night. Fifty men were at work stopping the advance of the fire.

The second fire broke out yesterday on the north side of Peter's Mountain in northern Lebanon county, but was under control late Sunday.

CONVICT NEAR SCIENCE DEATH

"Human Test Tube" Injected With Serum in Tuberculosis Experiment.

Canon City, Colo., May 7 (AP).—The death against which Colorado convict No. 8217 gambled in the cause of science was threatening to overtake him Sunday.

He was seriously ill from the first of a series of injections of serums which he volunteered to take in a "human test tube" experiment to determine if a new tuberculosis preventive discovered at Denver is a success.

Dr. H. J. Corper, of the National Jewish hospital at Denver, who has been experimenting with the serums for 15 years, said Mike Schmidt, 53, the sick convict, is seriously ill, but his condition is not considered critical.

Another convict, Carl Erickson, 62, who also is taking the serums, was not made ill by the first injections, which were started Thursday.

Used On Animals

The serums have been tested on animals, but this is the first time they have been injected into human beings. After the convicts receive a series of the injections they will be inoculated with bacilli of tuberculosis to determine if they are immune to the disease. The serums are not a cure for tuberculosis, but are designed to prevent it.

"The entire test will be extremely slow, and we will go ahead with extreme caution," Dr. Corper said Sunday.

"Naturally, we cannot tell anything yet, and it will take from 18 months to two years to determine whether we have a preventive."

Both the prisoners, serving life terms, will be given commutations following the experiments, officials announced. Before they offered themselves for the experiments the convicts were told the tests might cause their deaths.

The chapter members were pleased to learn that Mrs. Sheppard has been nominated for the office of state regent. The election will be held in Philadelphia in October. Members consider this a high honor for a member of their chapter.

A social hour followed the business session at which the hostess served tea. The next meeting will be held on June 2 at the home of Mrs. D. C. Jacobs, Arendtsville. At that meeting, Miss Helen Eckard, of the Hoffman orphanage, a senior at Gettysburg high school, will read the essay which has been awarded first prize in the annual D. A. R. essay contest. Miss Ruth Dougherty and Harman Purney, both of Gettysburg, and both seniors, won second and third prizes, respectively.

Orange and Blue Track Men Beaten

The Gettysburg college track team suffered a severe trouncing at the hands of Dickinson in a dual meet held on the local field Saturday afternoon, 85.1 to 40.9.

Dickinson copped five firsts to Gettysburg's three in the track events and also won four firsts in the field events. Sobolesky, of Gettysburg, tied Gladdeck, of Dickinson, for first place in the pole vault.

THOUSANDS PAY WOODIN HOMAGE

Former Secretary of the Treasury Is Buried in Berwick, Pa., Sunday

Berwick, Pa., May 7 (AP).—While thousands stood in a blazing sun, the body of William H. Woodin, former secretary of the treasury, was laid to rest Sunday under a blanket of native daffodils and iris, in a crypt of the family mausoleum in Pine Grove cemetery here.

The homely tribute of neighbors and friends had earlier been paid in simple services in the First Presbyterian church and during the hour and a half when the body lay in state and was viewed by hundreds.

His last resting place was but six blocks from his birthplace and not far from the plant in which he laid the foundations for his brilliant career.

Members of the "Old Guard"—veteran employees of the American Car and Foundry company who had served with Mr. Woodin when he was a youth in the shops—were honorary pallbearers, together with company and Berwick plant officials and prominent citizens of Berwick and Columbia county.

Thousands In Throng

Flags were at half-staff along the streets, and highway patrolmen and Berwick police handled the press of thousands about the church and cemetery.

The funeral party came to Hazleton by special train and motored to Berwick. Not more than half those who sought to view the body while it lay in state gained entrance to the church, and admission to the services themselves was by ticket until all members of the party and friends had been accommodated. Then several hundred were admitted.

Before and after the services "The Unknown Soldier," a Woodin composition, was played by Clark Fuller, church organist, but there was no music during the rites, which occupied but 19 minutes.

The Rev. Dr. David M. Harrison, Presbyterian pastor, was in charge of the services and read the 23rd Psalm. The Rev. W. W. Scholl, of the Methodist church, offered prayer and the eulogy by Dr. Harrison was confined to a few words.

BRITAIN SEEKS JAPAN'S PEACE

British Empire Eager for Friendlier Relations With Nipponese.

London, May 7 (AP).—Despite the delicate situation created by her controversy with Japan over the textile trade, Great Britain is making a supreme effort to maintain the friendlier relations with Tokio.

The attitude of the government was revealed authoritatively as being one of determination that there must be no political rupture whatever.

"Britain will not permit a trade fight to develop into a political break of any sort," this authority declared, "nor can far eastern political problems cause any degree of trouble between us and the Japanese."

A statement of the British policy, with particular reference to the trade conflict, is expected to be made in the house of commons today or Tuesday.

The presentation to Japan of what amounted to an ultimatum threatening empire restrictions and open trade war as a result of Japanese trade expansion has brought no reply so far, but it was regarded as likely that one would be at hand within a day or two.

The policy of waiting for a reply drew fire from the textile interests, but the government apparently is unwilling to take summary action at this time.

Although officials are inclined to laugh off Sino-Japanese political problems and assert that Japan's assurances that treaties will be respected are sufficient to convince Britain there will be no further difficulties in China, there is known to be considerable apprehension under the surface.

As a result, Britain was represented as "leaning over backward" in its relations with the Japanese empire. One official declared that never before has it seemed so necessary to keep British-Japanese relations friendly. Such relations, he declared, are "absolutely essential" to the world at large.

PLOWS CROP UNDER, THEN STORMS BRING ANOTHER

Topeka, Kan., May 7.—James Sahara, a farmer living near here, sowed sixty acres in rye. He later "rented" the land to the government on an AAA project and plowed the rye under.

Dust and wind storms came and Sunday he reported the field green with a mixture of wheat, oats and rye, grown from seed blown onto his ground from adjacent fields. The land having been "loaned" to the government, Sahara speculated as to who was the rightful owner of the volunteer crop which soon will be ready to harvest.

Railroads Meet Challenge With Girls, Music and Speed

Washington, May 7 (AP).—America's railroads want their business back and they are using orchestras, pretty girls, sleek, streamlined trains, a more accommodating service and lower rates to get it.

There was a time when they broke the tedium of waiting for freight and passengers to return by complaining to the Interstate Commerce commission, or anybody who would listen, about their competitors.

The rail carriers still are complaining, but, meanwhile, they are giving the busses, the trucks and even the airplanes something to think about.

Store-Door Pick-Up Service

The sympathetic I. C. C. has permitted them to pare freight rates in many sections to meet the challenge of the rumbling motor trucks. Furthermore, they have installed what is known as store-door pick-up service.

In giving the latter service, railroads will run their own trucks up to the back door of establishments and pick up freight.

Officials of the Missouri Pacific railroad reported some time ago that in Kansas City this innovation had added as much as thirty carloads of freight a day to their shipments.

Almost every big railroad in the east has informed its customers "we collect your freight and we deliver it, too."

Even in the lowest depths of depression the railroads kept much of their heavy freight business, but the motor busses and automobiles made great inroads in their passenger traffic.

Some Railroad Innovations

Here are some of the things that have been done:

The Atlantic Coast line has set up miniature night clubs on its Florida trains. The music is soft.

For those who traveled by busses because of lean pocketbooks rates have been reduced. In the southeast they have gone as low as one and a half cents a mile; in several western states two cents as compared to the legal rate under I. C. C. rulings of 3.6 cents.

Emphasis has been placed also on more speed, more comfort and fewer cinders. Coaches are air cooled.

To Compete With Planes

The Burlington and the Union Pacific recently have built trains that an old time engineer would have difficulty in recognizing. Gone is the old-fashioned smoke stack and the smoke; the coveatower doesn't spraddle like it did and the bell is nowhere to be seen. Surfaces are rounded wherever possible but the stream lining enables steady running at more than 100 miles an hour.

The Pennsylvania is electrifying its line between Washington and New York with the view of running trains at such speed that a person who takes an airplane to save time may find, after getting to the airport and back, that he would have arrived more quickly by traveling as his father and grandfather did.

Cavalade Wins Kentucky Derby

Louisville, May 7 (AP).—Kentucky Derby winners seldom become champion race horses, but if one ever had a fine chance to win the 3-year-old crown it is Mrs. Isabel Dodge Sloane's Cavalcade, which captured the sixtieth running of the historic race in such magnificent fashion as to beggar description.

Trained to perfection by R. A. Smith and expertly ridden by Mack Garner, who was aboard his first Derby winner after ten losing attempts in the classic, Cavalcade defeated the best band of thoroughbreds to go to the Derby post in years, and was not forced to extend himself.

Murder at MOCKING HOUSE

by Walter C. Brown

SYNOPSIS: Sergeant Harper has left Pierre Dufresne drunk in his apartment at the Austerlitz, and has driven out to Dufresne's suburban home, only to find a policeman and a man, apparently Dufresne, shot dead in the breakfast room of the handsome house. The snow about the house is undisturbed except for tracks of the policeman who had entered the house only to meet death. Harper has been helping Dufresne, who was ambushed earlier in the day, after having received a set of threatening letters. The Sergeant tried to enter Dufresne's locked bedroom at the Austerlitz.

Chapter 11 OPEN AND SHUT

Before the discomfited servant could reply, the Superintendent of Service arrived with a bunch of keys on a heavy ring. The third key he tried did the trick. Harper and Andrews entered the bedroom, and the detective, after one look, closed the door on the others.

A disheveled figure lay across the bed, fully clothed except for coat and shoes. The coat was flung carelessly across a chair, the shoes kicked or thrown under the bed. Harper lifted the lolling head. The eyes were closed and puffy, the facial flesh flabby and loose, but there was the meticulous beard, the fine, clearcut features of the real Pierre Dufresne.

Who, then, was the dead man sitting at the head of the table in that mansion on Powhatan Terrace, with a gun in his hand and a neat round hole through his brain?

At first glance Harper had been deceived by that corpse in the armchair, but a closer view had revealed differences in the hair, the facial structure, the ears, the age lines of his features, while a still closer scrutiny had shown him the fact that the dead man's beard was artificial. So he had turned the key on that room of death and followed the sudden, overwhelming urge to go back and make certain that Dufresne himself was still in safety.

The behavior of Andrews had been very peculiar and Harper had not been too absorbed to notice it. When the bedroom door had yielded under the master-key, the old butler had stumbled into the room like one in a daze, and now he stood uselessly around, with his eyes staring at his master's inert figure with a peculiar fascination.

The detective saw that his hands were trembling and that he grasped at things for support. This was the more notable when contrasted with Andrews' unspoken truculence before the door had been opened, for at one point Harper had felt that the gray-haired butler was considering forcible resistance.

The detective heaved the sagging figure around so that the lolling head rested on the pillow of the bed. He picked up the brandy bottle which stood on the night table beside the bed. It was empty. Some of the liquor had been spilled on the rug by the bed.

The detective's lips curled as he shook Dufresne brusquely by the shoulders.

Harper soon realized that more heroic measures would be needed to restore this inert mass to reason and consciousness. He turned to Andrews. "We've got to get him sobered up," he declared. "You get on that phone and order up a bowl of cracked ice and a couple of quarts of the blackest coffee they can make."

While Andrews was carrying out this order, Harper admitted the two guarding detectives into the bedroom. He gave a brief but adequate account of the situation in the house on Powhatan Terrace.

"Markison," he went on, "we've got to get Dufresne sober. I'm leaving that to you. They're sending up some cracked ice and black coffee. Open those windows and get him over to the cold air. Rub the back of his neck with the ice. Then fill him with as much of the coffee as he can swallow. Walk him up and down. If that doesn't work, give him an emetic and start over again. Let him growl all he wants, but get him on his feet."

Harper looked at his watch. "I've got to get back on the job. I haven't even started the work up there. When you get him fixed up, Markison, bring him up to Powhatan Terrace. You two will ride with him, of course. We've got to try to get some sense out of this queer business and I want Dufresne to see that room and the bodies in it as they were found."

Andrews had been listening, agitated, to the detective's description of the grisly scene in his master's house. "Mr. Dufresne's car is here in the garage, sir," he remarked, on hearing Harper's plan. "Where is the chauffeur?"

"Somewhere in the building. He is on duty until midnight. He can be ready on a few minutes' notice."

"How long has he been in Mr. Dufresne's employ?"

"Six or seven years, sir. He's quite reliable."

"That's all right, then. Come along with them, too, Andrews. By the way, do you know where Mrs. Dufresne is staying?"

"Yes, sir. She is visiting Mrs. Creighton Morlock."

"Then get Mrs. Dufresne on the phone for me, will you? I'll talk with her before I leave."

Andrews went to the outside telephone and gave the number from memory. Presently he was expostulating to the operator, "But that's quite impossible, Miss. There's a dinner party at that house. You must be ringing the wrong number."

He turned and spoke to the detective over his shoulder. "She says there is no answer. Mrs. Morlock is entertaining this evening. There must be some one to answer the telephone."

Andrews finally called for the chief operator and told his trouble to her, but she confirmed the operator's story. They were ringing the right number and there was no response.

Harper was impatient to be on his way. "All right, Andrews. Try them a little later. Tell Mrs. Dufresne that there has been some trouble at Powhatan Terrace and that I've sent Mr. Dufresne to come up there and give us his assistance. Assure her that he will not be incurring the slightest risk."

"Yes, sir. She knows about the attempt to shoot Mr. Dufresne this afternoon. He called her up as soon as he got back here."

"Then you may tell her that we believe the crank letter writer has been killed. That will ease her mind."

Harper left the Austerlitz. His car was waiting outside and he directed the chauffeur to drive to Headquarters, where he found Detective John Lafferty waiting in the Homicide Bureau. They returned to Powhatan Terrace and Harper filled in the time by giving his assistant a full account of what had transpired.

When they drew up before Dufresne's house, the detective saw that the police ambulance and another official car stood outside. When Lafferty was warned to keep to the neatly made path he asked, "What's the idea, Steve?"

"I'm keeping the place from getting all tracked up by the coming and going here. That snow started late this afternoon and if we can preserve the tracks made in it up to the time the murders were discovered it should tell a pretty clear story. But we'll have to wait for daylight to do that properly."

Lafferty gave his superior a keen look. "I thought this was an open-and-shut case? It sounded like it."

"There are some very peculiar features. Not knowing what may turn up, I'm going to be prepared."

"Everything will be covered deep by morning," Lafferty suggested.

"I don't think so. The snow's beginning to ease up already."

All the lights in the house seemed to be on and all the doors open, but the only person in sight was a plainclothesman who was arguing angrily over the telephone. It seemed that the insufflator powders in the fingerprint kit had been sent up imperfectly packed.

Harper found the experts from Headquarters gathered around the two bodies, vehemently arguing the case.

Sergeant Harper ran his eye over the group. "Where's Jackson?" was his first question. Jackson was chief photographer of the Bureau of Identification.

"He left just a little while ago. He said he'd develop the prints himself and have 'em up here by morning," Clymer reported.

"Did he take any 'shots' with the beard and moustache off?" Harper continued, nodding toward the dead man in the armchair.

"Yes, sir. We tumbled to the makeup as soon as we got a good look at him."

"All right, men. Clear out now and give us a little breathing space in here. I want to hear what Doc Miller has to tell us."

Dr. Miller, a police surgeon of many years' tenure, looked as if he would have a great deal to say. Raymond Carlin, the ballistics expert, was at the far end of the room, busy with magnifying lens and flashlight.

"Where'd Doyle get 60?" Harper asked, suddenly missing the reporter's face in the midst of all this activity.

Bud Knox batted and pitched the Gettysburg firemen to a 6-2 victory over Cashtown in the opening league game at Cashtown Saturday afternoon before a large crowd.

Gettysburg tallied twice in the third inning when Kitzmiller and Moser singled and both scored on Knox's first double. Wermick scored in the sixth inning when he was safe on D. Bream's error, stole two bases and tallied on Flynn's bingle. An error by Carbaugh followed by Knox's second double produced a run in the seventh. The final local runs came in the ninth when Kitzmiller walked, K. Knox was hit by a pitched ball and B. Knox tripled.

After being blanked for seven rounds Cashtown put on a two-run rally in the eighth. Kump led off with a double and P. Bream singled. D. Shultz bounced to B. Knox, but J. Bream singled and D. Bream doubled. Hartman walked but Bucher and Carbaugh popped out.

York Springs, with Martin hurling a great brand of ball, shut out Bendersville at York Springs, 3-0. Routsong was on the knoll for the losers. East Berlin nosed out Arendtsville in a slugfest at East Berlin, 7-6.

Large crowds are reported to have witnessed each of the opening tilts and a successful season for the league seems assured.

SKULL FRACTURED AS HIS AUTO IS WRECKED

Lebanon, May 7 (AP)—Stanley Kowalski, 53, of Staten Island, New York, suffered a fractured skull, broken nose, and lacerations of the head early Sunday as an automobile upset and struck a drain pipe on Route 22, near Lebanon.

Highway patrolmen said the driver, Alexander Rothowski, 51, of Port Richmond, New York, told them he fell asleep at the wheel after driving all night. He was treated at a Lebanon hospital for cuts and bruises.

DR. K. T. WAUGH'S RESIGNATION IS SUBJECT OF PROBE

The year-old mystery of why Dr. Karl T. Waugh resigned as president of Dickinson college has been revived.

Doctor Waugh left his post last June for reasons which have never been made clear to the alumni of the college. On Saturday the Dickinson club of Harrisburg unanimously passed a resolution calling for trustees to review, through an impartial board, circumstances of the resignation.

Suggests Committee of Nine
The resolution suggested that a committee of nine be named, including trustees and alumni, to consider every angle of the situation.

Considerable indignation was aroused at the time Doctor Waugh resigned, when reports reached the alumni that the resignation had been improperly forced upon the educator.

Last fall Doctor Waugh accused the present college administration of waging an undercover propaganda campaign intended to discredit him.

In an open letter to James H. Morgan, president of Dickinson, Dr. Waugh accused him of "trying to make the college inimical to me" and demanded that Morgan either substantiate charges against him or retract discrediting remarks attributed to him.

He also said in the letter that his departure from the office of president was brought about by Morgan's "objection to the pursuit of modern business methods in the administration of the college."

Bell is a son of John C. Bell, former attorney general of Pennsylvania. He is president and business manager of the Philadelphia Eagles professional football team and is associated with the firm of brokers. A member of the famed University of Pennsylvania varsity team of 1919 Bell later became assistant coach at Penn and more recently was assistant football coach at Temple university.

ONE HUNDRED YEARS AGO

Gettysburg Female Academy:

The semi-annual examination in this excellent institution took place on Thursday and Friday and was attended by a large number of visitors during the whole continuance of the exercises. The Young Ladies, by their unexampled correctness and proficiency reflected the highest honor upon themselves and their estimable Preceptor; and furnished evidence to all who witnessed their examination, that the Institution is not surpassed in excellence by many others in the country. It is now fast rising to that high eminence which the talents, industry and moral worth of its Principal must naturally elevate it to.

At the close of the examination on Friday evening, original pieces of composition were read by the Misses E. McFarlane, M. Paxton, E. Bowen, of Shepherds Town, Va.; M. A. McLean, E. McCaughy, and A. C. Harper; and diplomas were presented to the Misses Margaret McLean and Amelia C. Harper, in testimony of their having completed a full course of instruction in the Academy.

Read the Bible With Us Daily

For the love of Christ constraineth us; because we thus judge, that if one died for all, then were all dead:

And that he died for all, that they which live should not henceforth live unto themselves, but unto him which died for them, and rose again.

Wherefore henceforth know we no man after the flesh: yea, though we have known Christ after the flesh, yet now henceforth know we him no more.

Therefore if any man be in Christ, he is a new creature: old things are passed away; behold, all things are become new.

And all things are of God, who hath reconciled us to himself by Jesus Christ, and hath given to us the ministry of reconciliation;

To wit, that God in Christ, reconciling the world unto himself, not imputing their trespasses unto them; and hath committed unto us the word of reconciliation.

Now then we are ambassadors for Christ, as though God did beseech you by us: we pray you in Christ's stead, be ye reconciled to God.

For he hath made him to be sin for us, who knew no sin; that we might be the righteousness of God in him.

2 Corinthians 5:14-21.

Today's Talk

By George Matthew Adams

THE ELOQUENCE OF SIMPLE THINGS

NOTHING is so wholesome and inspiring as the good earth. Recently I have been thrilled by a ride through fertile country with farms and country folk all about us.

One day we kept stopping and photographing unique sights. One day we saw a most interesting barn upon the side of a hill along the road that looked as though the slightest wind would topple it to the ground. But the old farmer, who stood near, said that it had been there since he was a boy! Old wagons and machinery stood all about. Broken crates and carts added to the picture.

I got to talking to two old fellows who sat upon a doorstep. They greeted me with the warmest of greetings and then started in to tell me of everyone who had ever lived in the village. I listened with interest, for the quaint expressions and honest language fascinated me. As I left, I said to myself that there was a regal eloquence in simple things.

To walk into a simple farm house is a kind of heaven to me. To talk to a workman upon the road, or upon the farm is a privilege. I once worked upon a farm and loved the fine wholesomeness of those who give their lives to cultivating the soil. And there is something soothing to all the associations about a country place. The very animals seem to understand you. And each bird seems to sing its song for you alone.

There is an eloquence to simple things that no wealth can embellish. In nature there are creations that no hand or mind of man has ever been able to approach. The smallest flower is a miracle. The simple wild violet that springs to life in the springtime, has more wonder and glory to it in its simple heart than the most intricate machine of man's design.

Too intricate a civilization is apt to destroy itself in time. That has been the history of mankind. Back to nature and back to the simple things have more saving glory to them than all the schemes and dreams of the learned. "Pet ideas" are usually no more useful than pet cats or dogs.

Babe Hurlled to Death in Crash

Lebanon, May 7 (AP).—A two-weeks-old infant was killed Saturday night as his father's car zig-zagged off the road into a plowed field and upset.

The child was George E. Barnes, Jr., whose father, a 42-year-old disabled veteran who lived near Lebanon, was released by highway patrolmen on the recognition of a clergyman.

Patrolmen said Barnes' car left the Jonestown road one mile north of Ebenezer. The infant was thrown from his mother's arms, through the window, and crushed under the machine. Barnes, his wife and their two other children, Robert, 14, and Mary, 12, escaped with slight injuries.

4 OF CREW DEAD, 3 HURT; STORM-TOSSED SHIP SAFE

Seattle, May 7 (AP).—Storm-raged and slowly sinking, the motorship Chidlar was towed into calm waters off the Strait of Juan De Fuca Sunday after a Pacific gale that killed four of her crew had almost sank her.

The coast guard cutter Red Wing was aided by the seagoing tug Roosevelt, of Seattle, which had been standing by off Flattery awaiting a chance to pass a hawser.

All of the Chidlar's crew but five had been killed or taken off. Three were washed overboard, one was hammered to death by a deck boat. Three injured were rescued by the coast guard from the teeth of the angry whitecaps and taken to Astoria, Oregon. Only the master, Captain J. Matthiasen, the pilot, the third officer, the chief engineer and the radio man remained.

Chicago, May 7 (AP).—There is just one little thing about Leo Weiner, 24, which is causing him some trouble these days. He looks like John Dillinger.

Friday Weiner was "captured" again after an excited citizen phoned the police that Dillinger was standing on a corner in the ghetto. Three police squads, armed for the battle, raced to the spot. At the station the man signaled for pencil and paper, and wrote:

"I am Leo Weiner, 24, deaf-mute. I came from Brooklyn to look for a job at the fair. I've been mistaken for Dillinger so many times that I'm sick of it. Even my friends shy away from me. I am going to grow a beard and get dark glasses." The police wrote him an apology.

BIG ARMS RACE IS IN PROGRESS

Nearly All Major Nations Are Unusually Active to Boost Forces.

Geneva, May 7 (AP).—Alarming signs that the much-feared armament race is in full swing the world over are seen by statesmen in recent developments in the capitals of virtually every major power.

From the nerve centers of the world come reports that the nations are bucking on more armor; that every branch of armament—air, water and land—is being strengthened.

Concern Shows in England Under a placid surface in England there is concern over the future; France has announced new precautions, despite her present great military power; the Russian bear is fixing new spikes to his claws; Germany is in rebellion against the fetters of the Versailles treaty; Japan is increasing her armaments; the United States is looking after her naval and air forces, and Italy talks of modernization and enlargement of her fighting forces.

In this international center the condition is ascribed to two things—the failure of France and Germany to reach an armament agreement and uncertainties regarding Japan's policies in the Far East.

Summary of Situation Here are figures gathered from authoritative sources showing how the rearmament spirit has been made manifest:

France in the last three years has increased her fighting force by 65,000 by employing civilians to perform work formerly done by soldiers, and is considering pushing up the figure 125,000 more through a lengthening of the period of conscript service.

Germany, in open rebellion against treaty restrictions, has increased her army and navy budget for 1934 from $268,000,000 to about $358,000,000 and her aviation budget from $28,000,000 to $84,000,000. She also has allotted $100,000,000 to the Nazi storm troops, whom Chancellor Adolf Hitler has said he would be willing to disarm under an agreement with France.

Russia has increased her armies in the last two years from 562,000 to about 678,000, most of the new strength going to the east.

Japan, in January, 1934, had increased her land, naval and air forces by 100,000 to a total of 456,000 in three years.

Italy in two years has increased her forces by 43,000, mainly in the air and naval branches and although her armaments budget shows a reduction for 1934, the saving will be through administrative economies. The king of Italy in opening parliament declared that his country has no intention of being "caught napping."

Poland has rushed her army up from 280,000 to 341,000.

ST. HELENA FOR TROTSKY IS SOUGHT BY FRANCE

Bordeaux, France, May 7 (AP).—The French government, despairing of getting another country to accept Leon Trotsky, is seeking a kind of St. Helena for him.

It was reported Sunday that authorities had decided to send the Russian exile to the tiny island of Dax opposite Rochefort-sur-Mer.

"WAS TAKING EVERY KIND OF DRUG FOR CONSTIPATION"

Then ALL-BRAN Brought Relief

Read this very enthusiastic letter:

"I am 34 years old and as far back in my life I have been constipated. I was so bad that I had one bowel movement every five or six days. I was taking every kind of drug known for constipation.

"Now for the last two months I have been eating a little ALL-BRAN night and morning and I have at least two to three bowel movements each day."—Mr. Frank Piratzky, 40-66 98th St., Corona, Long Island, New York.

Laboratory tests show Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" and vitamin B to aid elimination. ALL-BRAN is also a fine source of iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that in leafy vegetables. Inside the body, it forms a soft mass. Gently, this clears out the intestinal wastes.

Isn't this safer than taking harmful patent medicines? Two tablespoonfuls daily are usually sufficient. Severe cases with each meal. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

You'll enjoy eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN as a cereal with milk or cream—sugar or honey or fresh fruits added. Or, to use in cooking.

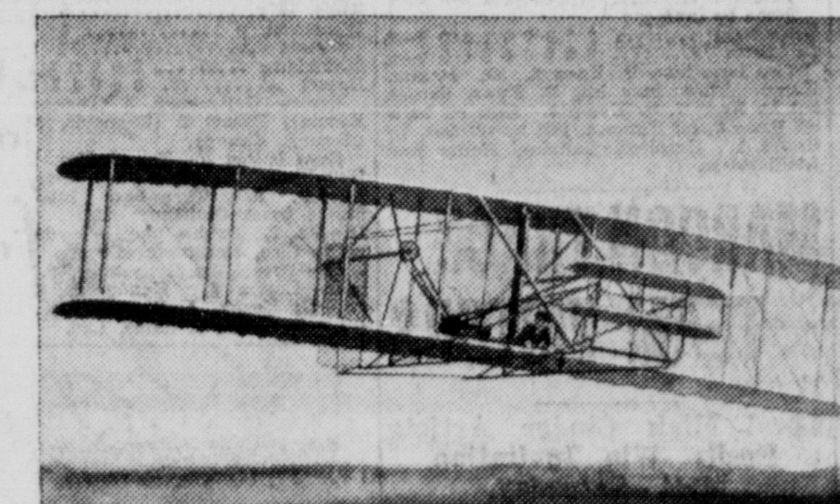

In the red-and-green package. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

ANOTHER N. Y. POLICEMAN
SLAIN, MAYOR ANGERED

New York, May 7 (AP).—Another New York policeman died Sunday from bullet wounds incurred in a gun battle with bandits, and the police department was spurred in its search for his slayers by angry comment from Mayor F. H. LaGuardia.

"Make it unhealthy for bandits in New York," the mayor said, suggesting a revival of the old weekly "dragnet" for known criminals.

Lawrence Wood, 31, the officer who died, was the third member of the department slain within the last ten days. He was shot down early Friday by three bandits.

A blaze of gunfire greeted his effort to question the men, suspected arsonists, and he was fatally wounded, as was a bystander. Another officer was wounded.

1000 SHIPS FOR U. S. AIR CORPS

Three-Year $50,000,000 Aircraft Development Is Announced Friday.

Washington, May 7 (AP).—A three-year, $50,000,000 aircraft development program, which will give the army air corps 1000 new planes and modernized equipment, was announced Friday by the war department.

The air corps now has about 1700 planes of all types, of which only 1300 are considered "serviceable."

Immediate action toward bringing the air corps up to standards set by foreign nations was promised by announcement that advertisements for competitive bids for 110 planes—80 bombers and 30 attack planes—would be issued within the next day or two.

The war department also announced that before July 1, Major General Benjamin D. Foulois, chief of air corps, would invite bids for 300 to 400 planes of all types to be purchased with congressional appropriations for the next fiscal year.

To complete the three-year plan, the war department, soon will issue specifications for bids on planes to be delivered in 1936, the bids not to be opened until the spring of next year.

Congress appropriated $8,486,000 for new planes to be purchased in 1935 and also allowed President Roosevelt a special aircraft appropriation of $5,000,000 of which $3,000,000 was earmarked for new planes.

To stimulate better ship and engine design, General Foulois will issue invitations for bids for new designs of various types of craft.

Lincoln, Former Spy, Barred By England as Buddhist Abbot

Liverpool, England, May 7 (AP).—Trebitch Lincoln, once a member of the British house of commons and now a Buddhist abbot, was arrested Sunday when he landed from the liner Duchess of York, and authorities said he will be deported to Canada on the same ship Friday.

Lincoln, now known as Abbot Chao Kung, was accompanied by five Buddhist monks and five Buddhist nuns. They also were arrested and will be deported.

"I only want to stay four months and preach Buddhism, just as you send missionaries abroad," said Lincoln, but authorities rejected the plea.

Lincoln gained a world-wide reputation as an adventurer and spy before taking up Buddhism.

Canada to Allow Passage
Ottawa, May 7 (AP).—Tre-

bitch Lincoln, Buddhist abbot, if returned from England to Canada he likely will be allowed to pass through this country and continue on his way back to the Orient, it was indicated Sunday night.

On his way to England last month Lincoln was granted permission to enter Canada by immigration authorities for the purpose of crossing this country. At that time he expressed the intention of establishing a Buddhist monastery on the continent after visiting England.

CIRCUS ACROBAT DIES OF SOMERSAULT INJURY

Boston, May 7 (AP).—Eugene De Koe, 37, of New York, an acrobat with the Ringling Brothers, Barnum and Bailey circus, died in City hospital Sunday of injuries suffered during a performance at the Boston Garden on the night of May 4.

De Koe, a veteran performer, was attempting a difficult and rarely accomplished feat, a triple somersault over a group of elephants, when he fell. He suffered a broken neck.

He was carried out of the arena by clowns and few in the big crowd of spectators realized he had been seriously injured.

A BLOW-OUT! WILL IT BE YOUR TURN NEXT?

Copyright 1934, The B. F. Goodrich Rubber Co.

Play safe with Goodrich Silvertowns, the only tires with the Golden Ply. Get months of extra mileage, too!

The only warning a blow-out gives is BANG! Then it's much too late. Neither your steering wheel nor your emergency brake can save you. All you can do is hope for the best. For a nice soft spot to land.

Due to powerful motors and whirlwind revolutions of smaller modern wheels, the heat generated inside the tire is terrific. Rubber and fabric begin to separate. A tiny blister forms inside the tire where you can't see it. As the friction increases the blister grows—bigger—BIGGER—until BANG! A blow-out! The rim hits the road. And a terrible drag sets in like some unseen monster pulling your car off the highway.

An amazing invention!

But now, internal heat, the enemy of tire safety and mileage, has been checked. By an amazing Goodrich invention—the Life-Saver Golden Ply. This remarkable engineering development, found only in the new Silvertown, resists intense heat. Binds the tire carcass and tread virtually into a single unit, inseparable even under grueling driving conditions.

Thus, blisters don't form. The great, unseen cause of blow-outs is prevented before it begins. The Golden Ply thus made the "safest tire ever built" 3 times safer from blow-outs at high speeds.

And here's proof. Racing daredevils tested it out at breakneck speeds. On the world's fastest track. Gave it everything they had. Not one blow-out. Similar tires without the Life-Saver Golden Ply failed at one-third the distance the Golden Ply Silvertowns were run.

Months of extra mileage!

In addition to being 3 times safer from blow-outs with new Goodrich Silvertowns on your car, you'll get plenty of extra mileage from your tires, too. For, with the destructive effects of internal heat overcome by the Golden Ply, the big rugged Silvertown outwears ordinary tires by months.

Enjoy the priceless feeling of security every time you sit behind your wheel. Get more mileage than you ever got out of tires before. So play safe. Put a set of Goodrich Golden Ply Silvertowns on your car today. They cost not a penny more than other standard tires.

This insignia indicates that the Goodrich Company complies fully with the tire manufacturing industry code.

CONDUCTOR FOUND DYING AFTER FALL FROM TRAIN

Elkton, Md., May 7 (AP).—Edward K. Walton, 62, of Columbia, Pennsylvania railroad freight conductor, died Saturday in an Elkton hospital several hours after members of his train crew found him injured beside the tracks at Elkton.

Norman Clark, of Columbia, a member of the crew of the train, bound from Elkton to Enola, Pa., saw Walton beside the track and stopped the train. The conductor was taken to the hospital in an automobile.

Members of the crew said they believe Walton either was jarred off or fell from the top of the train. Walton leaves a widow, two daughters, a sister and a brother.

B. F. Goodrich Co. ends more motoring hazards

In a campaign to eliminate motoring hazards, Goodrich engineers have announced these important new inventions. The Life-Saver Golden Ply is already famous for the protection it affords motorists in overcoming the great, unseen cause of blow-outs. Following Golden Ply comes the Seal-o-matic Safety Tube . . . an amazing new tube that seals its own punctures. And finally, the Gold and Black Tube that protects against rim cuts and chafing so strongly built, even running flat for a distance won't tear it.

GOODRICH ACCESSORIES

Amazing New Tube ends rim cuts and chafing

HERE'S PROOF! Goodrich made a lot of special tubes to test this new Gold and Black construction. One-half of each tube was made of the new construction; the other half of the best old-style compound. Then they purposely ran them flat. The old-style construction was torn to shreds. Yet the Gold and Black half was sound and unharmed by this terrific punishment.
